District No. 2 received the Fogg Donation.

I am pleased to note that my relation to our schools during the year has been most pleasant, and I hope not without some profit to our children and youth. Of the eight teachers employed, six reside in town. Most of these are experienced and some have taught the same schools heretofore with marked success. Concerning these let me say that they have not yet forfeited their former well deserved reputation. Only one was wholly inexperienced, but she proved a success, and the small school in No. 2 made unmistakable improvement. The same teachers were employed throughout the school year as is shown by the table annexed.

The Fall term in the several districts was somewhat disturbed on account of vaccination, which was deemed necessary and ordered by school and town authorities. This official act affected the average attendance in some measure, which we consider excellent, notwithstanding. On the occasion of our first visit to the schools we found but few pupils, comparatively, attending to writing. We insisted that the children must write,—that Penmanship must not be neglected. Due attention was soon given to this important study and the result was highly satisfactory. The best results were seen in No. 2 and the Grammar school. We have introduced the "Eclectic" Physiology by Eli F. Brown, M. D., this year. In this work the effects of narcotics and stimulants on the body and mind are clearly shown. We have urged the teachers to faithfully instruct the children in temperance, reminding them of the law bearing upon this important subject. Where the scholars were not sufficiently advanced to take the Physiology, oral instruction was given, and in two or three schools a temperance catechism was used. We have reason to fear that all our teachers were not equally earnest in this part of their work. The work of your committee in this particular has been supplemented by that of the "Woman's Christian Temperance Union," which organization appointed a committee to visit the schools in the interest of this cause. I am pleased to make grateful mention of this, and deem it proper in this connection to call the attention of parents to the Temperance School which is now in progress. Miss Ida J. Jenness is the efficient Superintendent and is ably assisted by other ladies. Let the children and youth in all parts of the town find their way here. We shall do well to make use of every instrumentality that has for its object the education of our children in such principles as are essential to correct habits of life. Our school-houses for the most part are convenient and in good repair. The ungainly and uncomfortable benches in No. 3 should give way to the modern seats, should this school be continued. Every teacher's desk should be furnished with text books. Pupils should consult the dictionary frequently and a large one should be found in every school-room. This leads me to say that there is a lack of furnishings in our schools, such as globes, maps, black-boards, &c. Of the latter there are too few and some of these unfit for use. Every teacher knows the advantage of them. Our best teachers use the most chalk. The time was when the board was seldom used except in the study of mathematics. Then, one small one answered for a large school. Not so now. In the best schools the board is in almost constant use. A restless lad of eight or ten years tires of his books, and employs the time in diverting the attention of other boys from their studies. Four idle boys produce considerable disorder. The teacher understands it all and calls boy number one to the board and gives him a copy. What follows? Order is promptly and easily restored, three boys have perfect lessons that otherwise would have been imperfect, and another improves his penmanship. In the Primary school the children were much at the black-board and their improvement in writing was wonderful. This school is by far too large for one teacher. Had we a recitation room, an assistant could be employed. It has been suggested that the school be divided and one of the same grade be opened at the lower village. We trust the new "school board" will act wisely in this matter.

Considerable anxiety is manifest on the part of some in regard to the new school law—the "town system." Your former committees have called attention to this system and discussed it somewhat from time to time in their reports, and urged its adoption. Prominent educators in our own and other states endorse it, and where it has been tried, so far as we can learn, has been a success. We believe it has superior advantages over the district system. Let us be slow to condemn it till it has been thoroughly tested. It is still a fact that the largest success of the teacher depends upon the hearty co-operation of parents. An occasional visit to the school-room proves an inspiration to the child and gives encouragement to the teacher.

It is to be regretted that so many of our youth leave school so early. This is surely an evidence of an undue appreciation of the value of an education. Does not the greater responsibility rest upon the parents of such children? Daniel Webster said: "If we work upon marble, it will perish; if we work upon brass, time will efface it; if we rear lofty temples, they will crumble into dust; but if we engrave upon the tablets of the minds of our children the principles of industry, honesty and virtue, they will live and brighten to all eternity!" Surely the education of the young is a great and noble work. Let each endeavor to do his part wisely and well.
